Famous in Chicago

Dining Out with John Wilfred

Chicago Sun, June 17, 1932

Chicago is welcoming with open arms Albert Luciarelli, son of Josephine and Albert Jr. The Luciarelli family, now located at 224 Barlow Avenue, came from a section of southern Italy.

Albert has brought with him a new taste sensation that is sweeping through the streets of this windy city. Pizza in a pan and as he coined it, "Chicago Style" pizza.

Albert feels that much of the success of his pies lies not only in the incredible thick and fluffy crust cooked in a pan but enhanced by the fresh tomato sauce, oils, special herbs, cheese and a variety of toppings which are most unusual and have never been used before.

The baking combined with the special technique of preparing the ingredients which he uses can be termed more or less a "Family Secret" as he is employing methods learned from the old country in the making of recipes handed down from generation to generation with some modern ideas with the most satisfying results.

One visit will convince you that this is a pizza lover's dream that should be shared with the rest of the country. You will share my surprise and pleasure in these pies which I never expected to be so good.
